Preface

We are glad to put this book into the hands of the students and friends of Colorado College, and in proportion as it meets with their approval we shall feel rewarded for the labor which it has cost us. Our effort has been to preserve here a record of those things which are really worth while, and the memory of which will be made more vivid by the sight of the printed page. A college life is so pleasant and so different from anything else that it must throughout life be the source of ever recurring memories, and if by this book we can increase the pleasure of those memories we shall be satisfied. We expect criticism, both favorable and unfavorable. To those who criticise us favorably we say, Thank you; to the others we can only say that we have done our best for our College and our class.

THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS TO BE ADDED TO THE FUNDS OF COLORADO COLLEGE

The financing of a modern college is an enormously difficult undertaking and the cost of the maintenance of higher education is increasing every year. Buildings, equipment of laboratories, libraries, salaries, incidental expenses and many other things make the annual budget a very serious matter for those who have to provide for it.

When Colorado College passed from the stage of a local school into that of an institution for higher learning, with its departments of science, its enlarged faculties, its complicated equipment, it had to meet the problem which comes to every college of first rank: that of providing funds for its plant, the annual expenses, and most important of all, an adequate permanent endowment fund.

When President Slocum came to its presidency, there was practically no equipment, and only one very inadequate building. There was no library worthy of the name and no endowment whatsoever. The task seemed an impossible one; for it involved the erection of costly college halls and their furnishings, a library building, and the accumulation of a large endowment fund which should correspond with that of the older Eastern institutions.

Hagerman Hall was first erected as a home for men, and in these twenty-three years of the present administration, over seven hundred thousand dollars has been put into the necessary buildings and their equipment, the erection of a library, and the purchase of over fifty thousand volumes for its shelves. In addition it has been necessary to provide for annual current expenses, which have increased from eight to over fifty thousand dollars a year.

The College receives nothing whatsoever from state or national funds, as do all the state institutions which are always supported by the tax-payers.

The receipts from tuition at Colorado College pay less than one-quarter of the current expenses, and nothing for the erection of buildings and their equipment fund.

The thing that is most essential in financing a modern college is the creation of an endowment fund, the interest upon which can be used for the payment of salaries and other necessary expenses. Without such a fund, an institution of the character of Colorado College can hardly exist at all, as it cannot depend as does the State University upon money supplied by public taxation.

The creation of an endowment fund was one of the things to which the present administration set itself from the very first. With this in view, Dr. D. K. Pearsons of Chicago was told about the College, and as a result he promised to give to its endowment funds fifty thousand dollars, if one hundred and fifty thousand more were secured, and this project was brought to a successful conclusion.

A few years later the President persuaded the the General Education Board of New York to give fifty thousand dollars on condition that four hundred and fifty thousand additional were secured. The task seemed impossible, but it was so essential for the future of the College that the new movement was set in motion. Then came years of hard discouraging work, and at last the half million was obtained, and today, with other gifts, the endowment funds of the College have been increased to nearly eight hundred thousand dollars, money which is largely invested throughout Colorado, thus helping in the development of the Commonwealth as well as in the support of the College. What has taken the older Eastern colleges often more than a hundred years to accomplish was done in less than twenty.

Large as this sum may seem, however, it is yet small as compared with those of colleges like Williams and Amherst, which have neither more students nor larger faculties and yet possess endowments three and four times as large as that of Colorado College. These older Eastern institutions with large and rich alumni, are constantly securing gifts in wills and from wealthy friends, while Colorado College has to create its giving constituency.

In the meantime our growing college, in spite of every economy has found its expenses increasing and its income inadequate. Notwithstanding the wearisome work of the past years, and in the face of the loss of such friends as General Palmer, a third movement has just been set under way by the administration, which involves the raising of an additional fund of three hundred thousand dollars of which one hundred thousand may be used for buildings, this having specially in view the need of a gymnasium for men. After a number of months of planning and work, the President again induced the General Education Board to start the subscription with fifty thousand dollars, on condition that the whole amount be raised.

With the completion of this the invested funds of the College will be in the vicinity of one million dollars, and the greatly needed gymnasium for men will be secured. These are the two things which President Slocum now has very much at heart; the erection and equipment of one of the best gymnasiums in the west, and the pushing of the endowment funds of Colorado College up to one million dollars.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY TO EXCHANGE PROFESSORS WITH COLORADO COLLEGE

(The Official Announcement.)

"Harvard University has arranged an annual exchange of teachers with four of the best known colleges in the country—Colorado College, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Grinnell College, formerly Iowa College, of Grinnell, Iowa; Knox College, of Galesburg, Illinois; and Beloit College, of Beloit, Wisconsin.

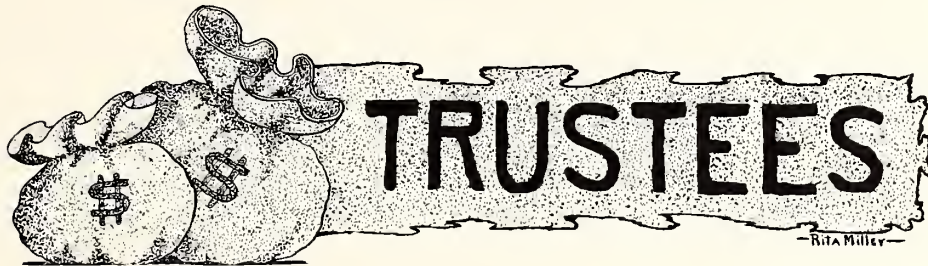

"Every year until the arrangement is terminated, Harvard is to send a professor, who will spend an equal portion of half an academic year with each of the four colleges mentioned above, and during that time will give to the students of these institutions such regular instruction in their courses as may be arranged by their faculties. The salary of this professor will be paid by Harvard, but the other colleges will provide his traveling expenses and maintenance while he is away from Cambridge. The professor will be selected every year by Harvard, with the approval of the other colleges. The arrangement will go into effect in the next college year.

"In return, each of the four colleges will be expected to send each year one of its younger instructors to Cambridge, and during half of the academic year he will be appointed an assistant in some Harvard Course; he will teach and he will be paid as though he were a regular member of the Harvard staff. He will not be required to give more than one-third of his time to teaching and may devote the rest of it to graduate and research work in any of the departments of the university.

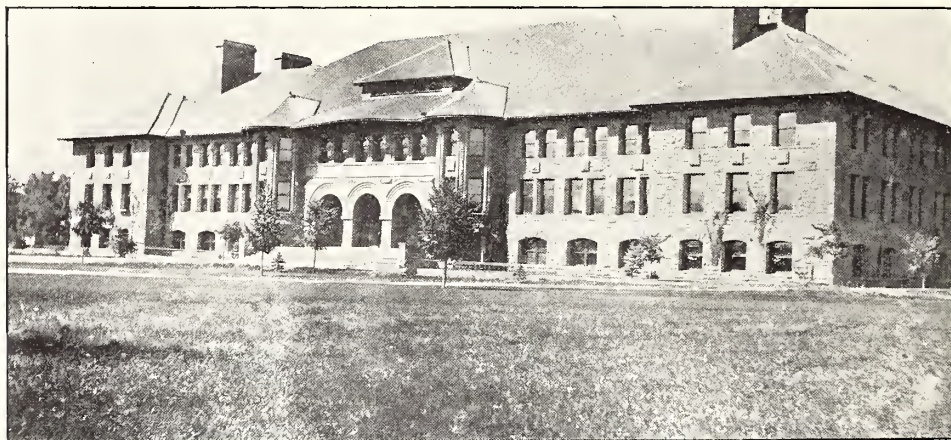

"Although no official announcement has been made, it is understood that the first Harvard professor to take part in this exchange will be Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of the department of history. Professor Hart will feel 'at home' in the Middle West, for he comes from the edge of that section of the country. He was born in 1854 in Clarkeville, Pa., a little town close to the Ohio line. He graduated from Harvard College in 1880. In 1883 he received the degree of Ph. D. from Freidburg. Since that time he has taught history at Harvard. Many of his students are now professors of history in colleges all over the country.

"The recognition given to the standards and work of Colorado College by Harvard University marks an important era in its history. It has not always been easy to secure a just appreciation of the actual educational achievements of those Western institutions which are doing good work. Efforts to secure such just recognition have too often been met with criticism of Western methods and accusations of exaggerations on the part of Western men. Now that a university which holds the place of leadership in America has not only acknowledged the standing of four leading colleges, but backed it up by not only sending each year one of the ablest members of its faculty to share in the instruction of these colleges, but also by accepting a member of their faculties to give instruction at Harvard, it is evident that such distrust is disappearing. The exchange of instructors has been under discussion between Presidents Lowell and Slocum for a number of months and it reached its consummation at conferences held at Cambridge during Dr. Slocum's visit in the East this spring.

"This new movement and the recognition which has been given to Colorado are highly appreciated by everyone interested in higher education in this section of the United States, and every student is grateful to Harvard for its generous action in this matter.

The College of Arts and Sciences

DEAN PARSONS

The School of Arts and Sciences has displayed great progress in the past year. The new rulings introduced to require higher scholastic standings of athletes, fraternity men and candidates for girls' literary societies have proved so practical that the principle has been extended to cover every field of college activity. In the middle of each semester special examinations are given to those who seem to be in danger of failing and every student is given a detailed report of his scholastic standing in order that he may have time to make up any short-coming before the final examinations. Any person whom the latest report has shown deficient in two or more subjects is ineligible for any form of intercollegiate contest and cannot compete for any college office. A marked improvement in scholarship has been the immediate result of the adoption of this policy.

Another recent ruling assigns to each college office a number of points, the number varying with the importance of the office, and provides that no student be allowed to hold offices totaling more than a fixed number of points per year. This prevents any tendency on the part of certain individuals to gain more than their share of these honors, and brings a greater number of students into prominence.

A few changes from last year have been made in the faculty. Professor Bushee has succeeded Professor Clark as Professor of Economics and Sociology; Mr. Breitweiser has filled the Assistant-professorship of Philosophy and Education left vacant by Professor Ruger, and Mr. Earl Alden has become instructor in English.

Never before have so many elective offices been available for students in this department; Law, Science, Languages, Economics, and Philosophy each has had its share, with the result that the student has been more able than ever to arrange his courses to suit his individual needs. The great variety of electives offered, and the excellence of equipment and instruction have done much toward putting this school on its present secure basis and have contributed largely to its rapid growth.

The School of Engineering

DEAN CAJORI

The past year has been one of remarkable growth of enthusiasm in Colorado College. This growth has been noticeable everywhere, but perhaps in no department has it been so strongly evidenced as in the School of Engineering. The old Chemistry Club has become the Engineers' Club, a literary society, whose special aim is to encourage original thinking along the lines of Civil and Electrical Engineering. Its members, drawn from engineers of the three upper classes and the faculty of the Engineering School meet on the evening of St. Patrick's Day at a stag banquet which is purely a social affair, and regular meetings are held once a week to conduct programs and listen to practical talks by men who have become foremost in the field of engineering. These lectures have become a feature of the Engineering School—the club and the College have united to secure the the best speakers possible, and the result has been the placing before the students of a vast amount of practical information and suggestions which could never be acquired in the ordinary class room routine.

The Summer School of Surveying, held in Manitou Park has contributed in a great measure to the growth and success of this department, giving as it does practical field work to test the knowledge gained in classes. Manitou Park is an ideal field for such a school, presenting an opportunity for every kind of work which the engineer will be called upon to perform in his profession. The Professor of Civil Engineering has charge of the work, and with his corps of assistants is able to give individual attention to each student. Students provide their own board and bedding, and pay a ten-dollar fee for instruction.

Several important changes have been made in the faculty of the Engineering School. Professor Moody has succeeded Professor Mills as Professor of Physics and Electrical Engineering, Professor Martin has taken Professor Lyon's place as Professor of Civil Engineering, Mr. Thomas that of Mr. Green as Instructor of Civil Engineering and Mr. J. H. Arbuckle has become Superintendent of Mechanical Laboratories to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Chas. G. Collais. All of these men have had practical experience in their fields of work, and are keeping the school up to its high standard of efficiency.

Colorado School of Forestry

DEAN STURGIS

The School of Forestry was established in Colorado College in 1905, when General Palmer and Dr. Bell presented the institution with Manitou Park, a beautiful tract of ten thousand acres of heavily timbered mountainous country, located within a few hours' journey of the College, well equipped with summer houses and in every way ideal for a field laboratory. The unusual natural advantages thus secured immediately brought the school to the front and obtained for it universal recognition; its graduates are men of recognized ability, occupying lucrative positions, and the increasing importance of the school may be shown by the fact that of the number of students at present enrolled, two-thirds are freshmen and nearly all are from the East, having chosen this College in preference to others of recognized merit and far longer standing.

Dean Sturgis and Professor Coolidge, of the faculty, are graduates of the oldest Forestry School in the East and have held responsible positions in the Government Forestry Service. The courses are planned to include both theory and practice—side by side with class room work goes the practical field work of observation and experimentation in Manitou Park and in several of the adjacent Forest Reserves which are thrown open to the students through the courtesy of the Forestry Service.

The Foresters in college have formed a club which meets fortnightly to discuss matters of practical interest and to hear special addresses by lumbermen, engineers and government forestry officers.

Experiments along lines of interest are being carried on in Manitou Park in cooperation with the Forestry Service, and the attitude taken by the government is indicated by the establishment last year of a few weeks' course for the Forest Rangers whose attendance was in every way encouraged by the Service.

The School of Forestry is in its infancy, yet it has already come to be one of the most important departments of the College. With its remarkable advantages of location, and its able faculty, its rank among the foremost Schools of Forestry is well assured.

School of Music

DEAN E. D. HALE

Last year the School of Music became affiliated with the two foremost Music Schools of America, in Boston and New York. It has now extended its affiliation in the other direction, and as a consequence has a group of teachers which bring one hundred additional pupils in touch with its courses and methods. A wide and telling influence upon musical culture has thus been established in the Rocky Mountain region. Meanwhile association with the Liberal Arts School has grown more intimate through the Theoretical and Culture courses, which are given four credits toward the A. B. degree.

The School methods are kept fully abreast of the most advanced and scientific thought and experiment of the day.

In contrast to the narrowness of a "method," its scheme of study embraces the ideas from all sources that have made accomplished musicians and artists.

The Faculty is undoubtedly stronger now than ever before. The Dean has a 'cello player and teacher in view whom he hopes to add to it in the fall.

Cutler Academy

The past year has been one of steady advance for Cutler Academy. A number of desirable improvements have been made in the building and equipment, so that now the Academy is a competent and up-to-date fitting school. Cutler Hall with the exception of a part of the basement, is now exclusively devoted to the uses of the Academy and all school exercises are held therein. This has tended to develop a unity and spirit in all matters concerning the school and makes for better work.

The attendance this year is 110, being almost indential with the enrollment for the past two years. For the first time in a long period, however, the girls outnumber the boys. Seven states and three foreign countries are represented in the enrollment.

A gratifying feature of the Academy's work is the number of students who enter College after completing their work here. Practically all those who are graduated continue their studies in some institution of higher learning. The majority of them enter Colorado College, but quite a considerable number go elsewhere. This year Cutler Academy is represented by graduates in Colorado College, University of Colorado, School of Mines, University of Kansas, Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Williams, Amherst, Smith and Vassar. From our graduating class of fourteen last year, all but one student entered college.

Cutler still maintains a strong interest in athletics, although for the past two years the local high school has been victorious in the games played between the two institutions. This has been due almost entirely to the great difference in numbers. Cutler rarely has more than thirty boys from which to pick the teams to represent the school, whereas the High School has in the neighborhood of 250. In spite of this fact, the Cutler-High School games are usually close and exciting. Since the Academy opened two weeks late, no football team was put in the field this year, but a strong baseball nine will contest for state honors this spring. S. W. Baker '12 is captain and B. P. Siddons, coach.

The two literary societies, Hesperian and Philo have been unusually active during the present year. Both have a large membership.

A number of improvements are being planned for the coming year. Chief among them will be a French teacher for the Academy classes. This has long been a vital need. Plans are being made to secure a competent instructor who has spent several years abroad and is fully prepared to build up this department. When this addition to the faculty has been made, it is believed that Cutler will be especially well equipped to meet all demands.

SENIORS

Seniors

Our Creed

WE believe in the class of 1911 as the best class in Colorado College.

And its divine right to rule and guide the faculty and students in things athletic, social and moral.

We believe in Phi Beta Kappa, in having no Rhodes scholar, in "Princess Bonnie," in JUNIOR Insignia days and in corduroy Annuals, in burning ticket stands, erecting Schneider Halls, serving "wienies" on all occasions, and in class spirit and originality everlasting.

Juniors

Our Creed

WE, the class of 1912, believe in Colorado College and the divine right of the faculty to command. We bow our heads humbly to all special examinations which are given us by the divine faculty as a reward for our general good behavior on all occasions, especially on Insignia Day.

We believe in one class only, our own. We believe in the supremacy of our class in social, scholastic, fistic and spiritual battles. We believe in watered abstinence, especially in the case of cider.

We believe in this edition of the Nugget and have faith that its place of supremacy will be undisputed as long as the memory of the class of 1912 exists which will be forever.

Sophomores

Our Creed

WE believe in Shaw, the maker of all plans and the cause of the great successes we believe we are having, and will have in time to come; in our ability to entertain, as shown by our numerous parties and picnics; in our oneness of spirit especially emphasized in our class meetings.

We believe in everlasting fighting, always being careful of public property; in our complete mastery of the class below us; and finally in our original idea of the "fireless barbecue" which will be used from this time on, even from everlasting to everlasting.

History

THE present Sophomore class is much the same as all other Sophomore classes. Upon entering the College it was heralded as, "The largest class to ever have, etc." It flag-rushed and as usual it failed to get the flag. It attended the stag reception, as Freshmen, and succeeded in being hog tied. It has had all the regular parties, picnics, and class functions. And it has gracefully fulfilled all the requisites prescribed for all Sophomore classes.

Yet it has differed from all other Sophomore classes and its individual class history can be traced in these differences. First, in the class fight, as Freshmen, it so organized itself and so cleverly concealed itself in the parlor of Hagerman Hall, that it succeeded in being tied up as an undivided unit, by the Sophomores. It next distinguished itself by being the only class to send a representative to the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. convention at Rochester, New York. Its next burst of individuality was seen in its successful Freshman stag with its cider aftermath, at the chapel. Here it served the entire student body, and unfortunately a portion of the faculty, with its delicious cider. Next came the Freshman banquet at the Acacia Hotel. At this banquet was initiated the movement of the group organization of the succeeding Freshman classes. A committee later met with Professor Hills and the present system was submitted to the faculty and adopted by them.

This year as Sophomores, the class introduced the moving van into the class fight. The Sophomore girls introduced the blanket to the Freshmen girls, in a unique little tossing party. And in the enforcement of the Freshman hat regulation, this class introduced the water cure, and with excellent results. In this year's Barbecue the class has displayed its greatest originality. By the faculty action prohibiting the bonfire, it fell upon the class to substitute an entirely new form of entertainment, to take the place of the old traditional bonfire barbecue. The substitution was made in the form of a representation of the old English hunting feasts. Tables garlanded with green, were spread in the grove at the end of the field. The scene was illumined by flaring torches and twinkling stars. A regular dinner was then served. The old English waiters, costumed in woodsmen's brown, passed amongst the feasters with large platters of roast beef and steaming sweet potatoes borne over head. And buxom lassies, with trenchers of nut brown cider passed around, filling and refilling the cups of the feasters. Court fools wandered about delighting the revellers with their happy antics.

This class believes in itself. It recognizes its youthful position and is patiently awaiting the day it shall come into its own. Then it will desport itself in the new gymnasium, delight the College with its co-educational dramatics and startle the state with its brilliant Junior Promenade.

Freshmen

Our Creed

WE believe in Freshmen which we all of us acknowledge ourselves to be: we believe in humility and complete submission to the will of the mighty sophomores: we believe that the water cure is all powerful as it has been applied to us, and when we come into our own we shall use it: we believe in peace, and reposing supreme confidence in our peroxide blonde president we trust that never shall we rise up to resist the tyranny of the Sophomores, from everlasting to everlasting.

History

THE Class of 1914, consisting of two hundred green specimens made its formal entrance into Colorado College, September 13, 1910. We started that first morning with a feeling of confidence and assurance. The remembrance of our numerous honors achieved in High School was fresh in our minds. We had with us, as a reminder, our excellent report cards and well earned diplomas framed by fond papa and mamma.

It did not take long, however, to change our state of mind. We felt slightly disconcerted in the afternoon, when our trunks arrived, adorned with signs rather uncomplimentary (to say the least) to our Freshman condition. As we trotted off to school the next morning we were shocked and grieved to find every available spot on the campus desecrated with unsightly green posters containing the cruel admonition, "Get in your hole, Freshman." But before twenty-four hours had passed we covered these signs with others of such a nature as showed that our class spirit was not lacking.

Our first class meeting was held September 15, and here we elected George Dawson as president and Everett Jackson as vice-president, pro tem. George disgraced himself by going to bed sick the day after the class fight with the Sophs, but he recovered before Everett had a chance to display his forensic ability. After the first month, another meeting was called to choose a permanent set of officers. Chester Cotten was elected president and he has held this office ever since in a very creditable manner. His chief failing is a propensity for breaking the second rule in the list adopted for Freshmen by the Student Commission. Our other officers are: Lewis, vice-president; Miss Wakefield, secretary, and Dowling, treasurer. Our next meeting was called to select class colors, to arrange for having a class picture taken, and to plan for a Freshman party. We decided upon navy blue and gold for our colors. We have had our picture taken in a very satisfactory manner and from this the beauty of our youths and maidens may be discerned. Indeed, at the Stag Ball, the prize for the handsomest couple was awarded to two of our members. But as yet, the Freshman party is still an event of the future. It seems to share, somewhat, the fate of the long-anticipated College picnic, prohibited by the elements, or the often-postponed Hagerman smoker.

In athletics, our class has shown great ability and enthusiasm. The annual football game between the Freshmen and Sophs was a fast, hard-fought battle, and the Freshmen played exceedingly well. Herron, especially, distinguished himself in his handling of punts and smashing tackles. Later, a Freshman football team was organized with Herron as captain.

The first social stunt for Freshmen only, was the reception given by President and Mrs. Slocum. A very enjoyable evening was spent and the class became better acquainted. The Junior class entertained us very delightfully at a reception on February 4, and the Sophs made use of us to entertain the rest of the school on October 31. On this date the Sophs, with the aid of one blanket, visited their long suppressed wrath on many innocent, unfortunate Freshmen. One poor little fellow was tossed for simply saying, "Good night, gents," in a very gentlemanly manner to some of the Sophs. In other all college affairs we have shown our school interest by attending in large numbers.

During the year we have realized that the way of a Freshman is hard, and that the Sophs take special delight in adding to our burdens. In reflecting upon this deplorable situation we find one strong consolation in the fact that next year we will no longer be the goats, but may resign that little pleasantry to the new class. So here's to the class of 1914. May we, next year, be as conscientious as 1913 has this year, in teaching Freshmen the error of their ways.

THE STUDENT COMMISSION

The present system of governing student affairs was launched in the spring of 1909 when, after the adoption of a constitution by the Student Body the first general election was held.

The present year has been the real test of the efficiency of the Student Commission, and we feel that the test has been in every way satisfactory. Besides providing for such things as Student rallies and Pan-pans and regulating class scraps, the Commission has given us the Freshman Rules, so well enforced this year, and working in cooperation with the faculty has succeeded in having adopted a system for the limitation of offices.

The Woman's Student Government Association

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD

Student Government among the young women on the campus has existed for five years. Its presence indicates a growth in the College. It has been shown that the result of more responsibility intrusted to the student body is more unity and greater respect for law. The best conditions for scholarly work, and for social and religious development, is the end in view.

The executive power is vested in an Executive Board consisting of the President, who is a Senior, one member from each hall, and one member from each of the three upper classes. The Freshman representative serves only during the second semester, when she attends all meetings of the Board but has no vote.

The Advisory Board of seven members is appointed by the Executive Board.

These five men together with the eleven regular team men constituted the training table squad. They were out every night during the season and worked hard all the time, keeping themselves always in the very best of condition and ready at any time to go into the game for their Alma Mater. Owing to the remarkable record of the first team men all of whom went through the season without having to be replaced at all, the subs had no chance to show their metal in a real game, but their scrimmage and practice showed that it was the real Tiger brand.

Schedule for 1910

October 8—Colorado Springs High School, Washburn Field.

October 15—University of Wyoming, Washburn Field.

October 22—University of Utah, Salt Lake City.

October 29—Colorado School of Mines, Washburn Field.

November 5—Kansas State Agricultural College, Washburn Field.

November 12—Colorado State Agricultural College, Fort Collins.

November 24—Denver University, Denver.

The Football Season

"Rocky Mountain Champions and the only undefeated team of eleven men in the West."

That is what the newspapers of the Rocky Mountain Region called us after our triumph over D. U. last Thanksgiving. And, believe us, we deserved it, too, for the way our Tigers played football last fall was something to remark about. We didn't realize what a big thing it was while we were doing it, but when we come to look back on it in cold blood, we fairly thrill with the remembrance.

At the beginning of the year, Coach Rothgeb, who was a new man with us last fall, got busy with a squad of ordinary size, which had turned out for practice. Among the last year's "C" men who reported were Captain Vandemoer, Hedblom, Steele, Heald, Sinton, Thompson, and Putnam. Among the new men who were eligible for the team were Witherow, Haight, Black, Cook, Acker, Reed, W. LeClere, H. LeClere, J. Sinton, Hand, Bowers, Weller, Floyd, Dickson, Jardine, Whipple, Scott, Van Stone and Root. With this bunch and a few more to pick from, and a number of Freshmen to practice on, Coach set to work to turn out a championship team.

And, say! Do you know that man they call Rothgeb? Well, when he starts to do a thing, he usually does it, or finds out the reason why. The first thing he did when he took hold of the team was to give us all to understand that he was going to be boss of the works. He had such a delicate way of doing it, too, that the first thing we knew we were ready to agree with him.

We had about three weeks to get ready for our first pre-season game against the Colorado Springs High School, and we got down to business to get into shape.

There was little to choose among some of the candidates for positions in the line-up. The team was bound to be unusually light, but events proved that our disadvantage in weight was more than made up in speed and spirit.

The High School always has a good team and when we lined up against them October 8 on Washburn Field, we were looking for a hard and scrappy game. The game afforded a tryout for everybody who was showing signs of varsity football. It brought out the facts that open football was to be our style of play; that the backfield looked like pennant-winners; but that the line was none too strong. We beat the Terrors 23 to 0 and the coach said, "You fellows will have to do better than this."

The next Saturday we took the University of Wyoming down the line for another 23 to 0 score. It was another pre-season game and showed a tighter line, a harder-hitting set of backs, and a cleaner forward pass. At the beginning of the fourth quarter the entire second team was put on the field to finish the game.

This was Van Stone's Jonah day. Van had got in the habit of holding the quarterback position pretty regularly and the outlook for a bright football career stretched before him. But in the very first play of this game he had the misfortune to fracture the small bone of his right leg just above the ankle, which barred him from the game for the rest of the season. This was the second of the two misfortunes which befell our team during the season. "Shorty" Steele, who would undoubtedly have made an all-state position, had his jaw bone crushed in practice so that he had to quit the game. Fortunately, however, we had two good men in Reed and Bowers who took the places and played the game like veterans.

The next Thursday morning the student body, 500 strong, escorted the team to the depot in a tally-ho to send us off to Utah to meet the Mormons. That send-off was the biggest demonstration we had ever seen in Colorado College and it certainly helped us on the gridiron the next Saturday afternoon, when, in the roughest kind of a game, the fighting Tiger spirit, unexcelled coaching, fine physical condition, and new football enabled us to defeat the University of Utah by a score of 21 to 17, the first defeat the Mormons had suffered on their own grounds in five years. This was the first championship game and it gave us a good start toward the pennant.

After the game Coach Rothgeb gave out the following report:

"I am more than pleased with the showing of the Tigers against Utah. The way the boys got into the game was surprising, and I must confess, they played a quality of football that was satisfactory. We had a hard game, but every man, except for a few bruises and strains, came out in fine condition."

Take notice of the following Tiger line-up, for it remained the same eleven-man team throughout the season:

Left Tackle	Bowers
Left Guard	Hedblom
Center	Witherow
Right Guard	Black
Right Tackle	Cook
Right End	Sinton
Quarterback	Reed
Full Back	Acker
Right Half	Vandemoer

When we returned home we found that the fraternities had made arrangements whereby the men of the team could be put on a training table. This splendid spirit which prevailed in every nook and corner in the college did much to determine the work of the team throughout the season.

The next Saturday, October 29, we brought the School of Mines down here and sent them home with the short end of an 8 to 0 score, while we took another definite step toward the championship. With a lighter team, we played rings around the men from Golden and the score poorly represented the relative strength of the two teams.

The next week the University of Colorado cancelled their game with us on account of smallpox. This was a great disappointment to us, equalled only by the disappointment of a similar cancellation of the state track and field meet which was to have been held at Boulder last spring. Manager Fowler arranged to play the Colorado Agricultural College game on November 12, instead of November 19, as it was originally scheduled, thereby making our schedule easier. The cancellation of the Boulder game altered the Colorado football map materially and left Denver University as the only serious obstacle between us and the championship.

On November 5, Washburn Field saw one of the most brilliant games of football ever seen in the West; the Tigers against the Kansas Aggies. The Manhattan men came to us with a reputation which would set our knees to shaking at the thought of it. They had beaten everything they had played during the season from the Haskell Indians to Creighton University.

Outweighing us eighteen pounds to the man, speedy, experienced, and confident, they ploughed through us for a touchdown in the first four minutes of play in seven downs. But that made us sore and we commenced a game of football that for brilliance, gritty playing, and real courage, has never been equalled in the state of Colorado. Vigor of youth, nerve, grit, determination and our knowledge of the new football game, as coached by Rothy, were responsible for our victory by a score of 15 to 8. Every man played throughout the game and every man was a star. The magnificent spirit displayed by our rooters when the visitors were on the long end of the score, was the real, genuine, old Tiger spirit which never gives up. This very spirit on the part of the rooters was no small factor in the victory.

(Rothgeb said after the game: "You fellows played good football—fine football, but you will have to do better.")

The next Saturday, November 12, still stiff and sore from the terrific Kansas game, we journeyed up to Fort Collins, and, in a rather listless and unexciting game, defeated the Colorado Aggies by a score of 24 to 0. We won on clockwork-like open playing, forward passes and occasional line plunges.

Then came the day, the big day, Thanksgiving day, when we met Denver University at Broadway Park in Denver to decide whether we were champions or merely tied for the championship. Never in the history of Colorado football has such an enormous crowd gathered to watch a game, as that which saw the Black and Gold triumph over the Scarlet and Yellow by a score of 6 to 5. Why repeat the story of the game? Almost every one in the state of Colorado who is at all interested in football knows it by heart. Those closely interested in one or the other of the two teams can never forget it. It was simply the same old story of the best team the victor.

For spectacular playing that game would be hard to beat. The enormous crowd suffered more from the agony of suspense than did the players on the field. One Tiger rooter—not a college man, either—declared that he lost ten pounds while he was watching that game.

The final score was 6 to 5 with the Tigers on top. The championship of the state of Colorado and the Rocky Mountain region was won; the final result of hard and consistent work on the part of the team, the second team, the coach, the student body and the faculty; in fact, of every one who had anything at all to do with the team.

Among the men of our team who were mentioned for all-Colorado positions were Witherow, center; Vandemoer, half back and end; Sinton, end; Bowers, tackle; Hedblom, guard; and Black, guard.

The friends of the College and the team showed their appreciation to the squad after the season was over, and they did it in a manner which will never be forgotten. Among those who entertained the squad were the Colorado Springs business men, Dr. A. A. Blackmann, and Hildreth C. Frost.

Herbert R. Vandemoer, Captain, Right Half Back "Herb" was the best all-round football player in the state of Colorado last year.

Joseph S. Witherow, Center, Longmont, Colorado. "Big" was an all-Colorado man and never lost a game of football in his life—even in his dreams.

E. E. Hedblom, Left Guard, Aurora, Nebraska. "Bloss" was picked for all-Colorado guard. At kicking goals throughout the season, he made a perfect score.

Harry L. Black, Right Guard, Victor, Colorado. "Blackie's" line-bucking and all-round aggressiveness won him recognition as an all-state man.

Glenn A. Bowers, Left Tackle, Colorado Springs, Colorado. "Fat's" fast, hard, gritty work was some of the best on the grid-iron last year. Another all-state man.

Oliver B. Cook, Right Tackle, Delta, Colorado. "Cliver" never had much to say, but when there was anything to do he was right there.

Glenn G. Reed, Quarterback, Glenwood, Minnesota. "Iota" ran the team like a veteran, and at running back punts he was one of the best.

F. L. Thompson, Left End, New York City. "Tommy" certainly made good and then some at holding down the end position.

W. H. Acker, Full Back, Canon City, Colorado. "Ack" was one of the best offensive players in the state. He comes of a football family.

Herbert G. Sinton, Right End, Colorado Springs, Colorado. "Herb's" spectacular forward-pass work was a feature of Colorado football. Another all-state man and captain of the next year's champions.

K. C. Heald, Left Half Back, Albuquerque, New Mexico. "Kenneth's" work on defense backing up the line was in a class by itself.

E. B. Fowler, Manager, Denver, Colorado. "Friday" creditably held down one of the hardest jobs a man can tackle. Another all-state man.

Claude J. Rothgeb, Coach, Colorado Springs, Colorado. "Roth's" work speaks for itself. We can't tell you a thing about him.

The Scrubs

THE SECOND TEAM

The Freshman Team

On account of the fact that freshmen are prohibited by conference rules from participating in intercollegiate football games, it is the custom for the freshmen to organize a team of their own.

The advantage of such a plan can easily be seen. It affords experience and recreation for those who are ineligible to play on the 'varsity team; it makes the freshmen-sophomore game, an annual event, much more interesting; it develops material which in later years may be used on the regular college team; and it affords practice to the first team.

The freshmen team is under a management of its own, and is allowed to schedule games with both city and out of town teams.

This year the freshmen played three games—all against better trained and more highly practiced teams.

Following is the schedule and the scores:

October 8—Freshmen, 3; Sophomores, 9.

October 15—Freshmen, 0; Colorado Springs High School, 8.

October 22—Freshmen, 0; Pueblo Centennial High School, 6.

Freshman Line Up

Center—Ogilbee, Sanderson.

Right Guard—Summers.

Right Tackle—Koch.

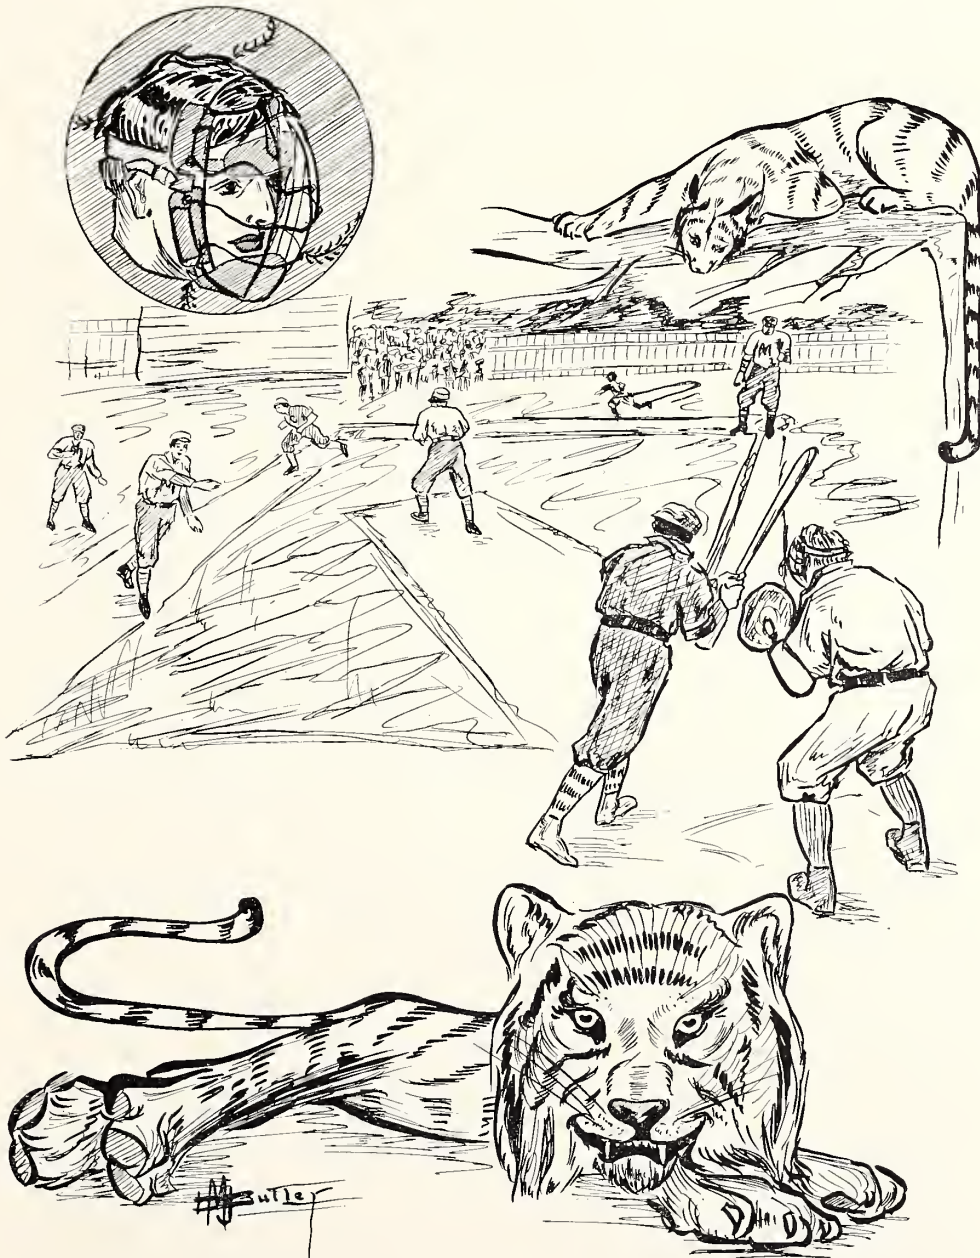

Right End—Howland.

Quarterback—Herron.

Right Half Back—Lewis, Geddes.

Left Half Back—Sloey.

Full Back—Jacobs.

The Baseball Season

Long before the baseball season of 1910 was in sight there was much speculation upon the prospects of our team. It was not a question of having a good team; it was a question of winning the championship again.

Upon looking over the team for 1909, we found that only four of our old men would be back. Our last year's battery, Van Stone and Siddons, would still be with us. They were the best in the state and should be working together better than ever before. The other two men were "Jimmy" Wilson, center field, and "Al" Sherry, shortstop.

We realized that this was very few men to start out with, but with plenty of new material, and "Beauty" Newhouse to coach, we would be sure to have a team that would be heard from when the season was on.

Among those who had before tried out for the team but failed to make their "C's" were Heald, Seldomridge, Donovan, Morris, Thornell, Sinton and Johns. Among the new men who would be eligible for the varsity team were Bancroft, Friend, Dickson, Moberg, Reed, Vandemoer, Moody, Boyes, Murray, Benjamin, and Wright.

Under the supervision of Coach Newhouse, the team gradually rounded into shape and on March 12 we played our first game of the season, with the strong Denver Athletic Club aggregation as our opponents. We drew the short end of a 14 to 4 score, together with a lot of suggestions as to our strong and weak—mostly weak—points.

The spring vacation trip, from the percentage standpoint, was not a great success, but as it had been arranged as mere practice, it could not be called a failure. We played games with Colorado Springs High School, Sacred Heart College, East Denver High School, Denver Athletic Club, Manual Training High School, and Golden High School. Bad weather spoiled some of the games, but in spite of the handicap, we succeeded in strengthening the weak places and developing team work, which, after all, is the secret of success in baseball. As a result, the last preliminary game of the season played against Manual Training High School, April 2, which we won by a score of 10 to 3, showed that we had found ourselves and were ready to jump into our intercollegiate schedule the following Saturday.

The Season

April 9 the fireworks began. In a pitchers' battle on Washburn field our friends from Boulder twisted our tail twice to our once. Van Stone pitched a no-hit game, but we lost on errors.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
University of Colorado	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	2	0	3
Colorado College	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	7	6

The following Saturday we kept ourselves in the running by defeating Denver University, 8 to 1, at University Park in Denver. The game, somewhat marred by the windstorm, showed marked improvement in the hitting department, and our fielding was also good.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Denver University	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	1	4	2
Colorado College	3	1	0	1	0	1	0	0	2	8	11	4

After a lay-off of two weeks we went up to Golden and beat the School of Mines, 7 to 1. In the meantime we had lost our coach, Newhouse, who had given us a good start toward the championship. The game was a snappy one and the features were home runs made by Van Stone and Sinton.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
School of Mines	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	4	4
Colorado College	0	0	0	3	1	0	1	1	0	7	10	4

In a featureless and somewhat uninteresting game we defeated the Aggies by a score of 13 to 4 at Fort Collins, May 7. The game lost all interest from the spectator's point of view after the first inning when we had gained the advantage of a lead of eight runs.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Colorado Agricultural College	0	0	0	2	0	2	0	0	0	4	3	4
Colorado College	8	0	2	3	0	0	0	0	0	13	14	4

The next Tuesday, May 10, we played one of the closest and most thrilling games of baseball ever seen on Washburn field, the return game with Denver University. After a questionable decision of the umpire in the third inning, the game was played under protest, and D. U. was victorious by a score of 4 to 3 in a ten-inning battle. By agreement the matter of the questionable decision was referred to the conference for final decision, and on June 10, after close consideration, the conference gave the game to us by a score of 3 to 2, and we were able to chalk it up on the other side of our percentage list.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	R	H	E
Denver University	1	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	1	4	8	2
Colorado College	0	2	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	3	6	2

We played the return game with the Mines on Washburn field May 14, and by snappy infielding, opportune hitting and base-running, gave them the short end of a 4 to 1 score. This was an errorless game for our team.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Colorado College	0	0	0	3	1	0	0	0	0	4	4	0

In a practice game, May 27, against the Colorado Springs Zooz, we were whitewashed while they made seven runs. However, Van Stone was not in the box for the whole game, or there would have been a different story to tell.

May 28 we brought the Aggies down here, and in a game full of errors, beat them to the tune of 14 to 7. Both sides played loose ball and the game was uneventful.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Agricultural College	2	0	1	0	2	0	0	2	0	7	6	9
Colorado College	0	10	0	0	2	0	2	0	0	14	12	10

Our next game was Memorial day on Washburn field against Sacred Heart College, and we defeated them by a score of 7 to 2. Sacred Heart had a fast and heavy-hitting team and the game was good from beginning to end. Van Stone was pitching his last game of the season on Washburn field and he made a tasty display of his speed and curves, allowing only three hits.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Sacred Heart College	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	2	3	6
Colorado College	2	0	2	2	0	1	0	0	0	7	9	2

The climax of the season came June 4, when we went up to Boulder for the return game with the State University. Remembering our defeat at their hands at the beginning of the season, we were determined to settle the score, and settle it we did. The score of 10 to 0 in our favor tells the story.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
University of Colorado	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	3
Colorado College	0	0	0	3	1	0	5	0	1	10	12	4

Thus for the second time in two years the championship pennant came to Colorado College. The whirlwind style in which we finished the season serves to demonstrate our real class.

First year men such as Friend, Sinton, Vandemoer, Dickson, Moberg, Thornell and Bancroft showed up in excellent form. Captain Sherry, Siddons, Van Stone, and Wilson were the old men and their work was all that could be expected. For our next season's team, with Van Stone as captain, our chances are excellent, although we shall lose Sherry, Siddons and Wilson.

"C" Men

"C" Track Men for the Season of 1910

For the season of 1910 track "C's" were awarded to the following men: Captain Jardine, Warnock, Pollock, Fowler, Vandemoer, Johnston, Jamison, H. Smith, Cary, and F. Copeland, manager. The captain who was chosen to lead the Tigers for the season of 1911 was Fowler.

The Track Season

The track season of the spring of 1910 among the colleges and universities of the state was a decided failure. The fact that there were only two meets held during the season, and those only dual meets, left the matter of the state championship undecided, with the State University holding the best claim to the honor.

According to the early season dope, it looked as though C. C. should be able to pull down first place in the state contest. Under the supervision of Captain Jardine, a large number of candidates reported at Washburn field regularly for practice and when the time came for our first dual meet against the School of Mines, April 23, we had it doped out that we could win from the Miners in a walk.

The entries for the meet were as follows:

100-yard dash—Vandemoer, Fowler.

220-yard dash—Vandemoer.

440-yard dash—Fowler, LeClere.

880-yard run—Jardine, Sinton.

1-mile run—Gibbs, Sinton, Jamison.

220-yard hurdles—Cary, Weller, Warnock.

120-yard hurdles—Cary.

Broad jump—Vandemoer, Sinton.

Pole vault—Johnston, Sinton.

Shot put—Heald, Cary, Steele.

Hammer throw—Cary, Steele.

Discus throw—Cary, Steele.

Relay race—Jardine, Fowler, Vandemoer, Jamison, Gibbs.

In one of the prettiest meets ever seen on Washburn field we decisively beat the Miners by a score of 76 to 55. The only feature to mar the affair was a cold, raw breeze, which made fast time in the longer runs impossible.

The feature of the program was Vandemoer's work in the hundred and two-twenty-yard dashes. When we consider that he slowed up at the finish of both of these events and then look at the time he made, we must admit that, in a pinch, he could lower the time to very near the world's record mark.

Following is the schedule of events and the score:

100-yard dash—Vandemoer, C. C.; Zwetow, M.; Fowler, C. C.; .10.
 220-yard dash—Vandemoer, C. C.; Zwetow, M.; Harris, M.; .22 4-5.
 440-yard run—Fowler, C. C.; McNeil, M.; Dauth, M.; .55 3-5.
 880-yard run—Jardine, C. C.; Sinton, C. C.; Roberts, M.; 2.17 2-5.
 120-yard hurdles—Carper, M.; Warnock, C. C.; Cary, C. C.; .16 3-5.
 220-yard hurdles—Carper, M.; Cary, C. C.; Warnock, C. C.; .27 1-5.
 Mile run—Jamison, C. C.; Marshall, M.; Sinton, C. C.; 5.02.
 Two-mile run—Pollock, C. C.; Gibbs, C. C.; Miller, M.; 11.33.
 One-mile relay—Colorado College; Mines; 2.45 4-5.
 High jump—West, M.; Sinton, C. C.; Langdon, M.; height, 5.4.
 Broad jump—Vandemoer, C. C.; Wolf, M.; Gowan, M.; distance, 21.1.
 Pole vault—Johnston, C. C.; Sinton, C. C.; West, M.; height, 9.6.
 Shot-put—Young, M.; Langdon, M.; Cary, C. C.; distance, 36.6.
 Hammer throw—Young, M.; Cary, C. C.; Mertes, M.; distance, 110.7 1-2.
 Discus throw—Cary, C. C.; Mertes, M.; Young, M.; distance, 104.2 1-4.
 Totals—Colorado College, 76; Mines, 55.

The dope on the dual meet with the State University showed that any way we could figure it there would be a close contest. Never in the history of athletic relations with them, have we ever been able to defeat them in track athletics. This was an awful admission to make, but it was true. Last year our prospects were pretty bright for defeating them for the first time. But at the dual meet which occurred on May 7, all our dope was upset and Boulder was again the victor, but only by the narrow margin of three points.

This was one of the most hotly contested meets ever held on Washburn field. Not until the next to the last event had been decided, was the outcome certain.

The manner in which the Tiger team ran the relay race was remarkable. They went into this race knowing that even if they won it, they could not overcome Boulder's lead of eight points, and they won the race with at least fifty yards to spare.

Vandemoer was the star of the meet. He ran the 100 in 10 seconds flat, equaling the state record. He broke the state record in the 220, winning easily in 21 4-5 seconds. Again, in the broad jump he cleared 22 feet, 3 inches, shattering another record, the collegiate record of Colorado.

The other men of the team did fine work, and when the meet was over we had won eight firsts to Boulder's six. The trouble was that we did not have men enough to enter the various events for the purpose of landing two or three second places. One more second place would have changed the result of the meet.

Points were won as follows:

100-yard dash—Vandemoer, C. C.; Browning, C. U.; .10.
220-yard dash—Vandemoer, C. C.; Browning, C. U.; .21 4-5.
440-yard dash—Fitts, C. U.; Messinger, C. U.; .54 3-5.
880-yard run—Jardine, C. C.; Short, C. U.; 2.03 2-5.
1-mile run—Jamison, C. C.; Prouty, C. U.; 4.44 4-5.
2-mile run—Pollock, C. C.; Prouty, C. U.; 11.9.
120-yard hurdles—Cary, C. C.; Hamilton, C. U.; .16.
220-yard hurdles—Malcorrcne, C. U.; Cary, C. C.; 27.2.
Relay—Colorado College; U. of C.; 3.41.
High jump—Hall, C. U.; Warnock, C. C.; height, 5.0.
Broad jump—Vandemoer, C. C.; Heaton, C. U.; distance, 22.3.
Pole vault—Jones, C. U.; Johnston, C. C.; height, 10.0.
Shot-put—Kettle, C. U.; Knous, C. U.; distance, 35.6.
Hammer throw—Van Gundy, C. U.; Cary, C. C.; distance, 112.11.
Discus throw—Cary, C. C.; Van Gundy, C. U.; distance, 105.3.
Totals—University of Colorado, 60; Colorado College, 57.

May 22 was the date that had been set for the state intercollegiate meet, which was to have been held on the grounds of the University of Colorado at Boulder. Miserable weather during the day and the night before made the state university see fit to call the contest off. The School of Mines and Colorado College made every possible effort to fix a suitable date to hold a postponed meet, but the Boulder management couldn't see it that way; and perhaps it was the best thing in the world for their championship aspirations that they couldn't. Sporting writers throughout the state agreed that the Tigers would have been able to "clean up" on the state intercollegiate contest, should it have been held. They figured that the Mines would be able to take enough points which Boulder had captured in our dual meet, to enable the Tigers to take first place. These same sporting writers were also of the opinion that the only reason that no state meet was held, was because the university did not want it to be held.

Vandemoer and Jardine at Champlain

For the first time in the history of Colorado College athletics, the College was represented last year at the Western Athletic conference meet, which was held at Champlain, Illinois, June 4.

Under the auspices of the Colorado Springs Gazette and Herald, the fund was started to send Jardine, the captain of the Tiger track team, and Vandemoer, Colorado's greatest athlete, to the meet, and generous subscriptions to the fund were made by Colorado Springs business men and others. The remainder of the fund was made up by exhibition games by the Tiger baseball team.

The Western Athletic Conference meet is one of the most important events of the year, representatives of the highest caliber from all the western and middle west colleges competing at this time.

The trip to a lower altitude affected Vandemoer more than it did Jardine, and although he won his heat in the preliminaries in as good time as was made during the meet, he was unable to win anything in the finals.

Jardine was more fortunate and was able to pull down second place in the half-mile event, after having forced Davenport, of Chicago, who won the event, to run as he had never run before. The half mile was run 1.56 3-5, which is Western Conference record time, and Jardine finished only a pace or two behind the leader.

It is a good thing to let people know that Colorado College is on the map as the result of the excellent performances of these two men, and people are coming more and more to realize that western athletes are made of just as good material as the eastern.

Both Vandemoer and Jardine are with us again this year and it is not improbable that they will be again sent to represent that College at the Western Conference this year.

Tennis at Colorado College has been put on a more permanent basis this year than it has been since the season of 1907-'08.

At the first of the year those who were interested in tennis held a meeting and, after forming an organization, decided to put clay on the courts. For this purpose a membership fee of fifty cents was levied.

Work was at once begun on one of the courts and continued until the money raised from membership fees was expended.

Beginning the year with a deficit of $45, and with no means of raising money the club was in very bad financial condition. However, the club through the generosity of the Athletic Association has been able to pay all back bills and take up the work on the courts where it was left off.

Owing to the poor condition of the courts no Fall Tournament was held, but there will be a tournament this spring. Last spring the championship was won by Fowler, who defeated Dietrich, a former holder.

There are at present nearly sixty members of the Tennis Club, many of whom are aspirants for championship honors, so that this spring the tournament will be very closely contested.

Athletic Director Rothgeb has general supervision of tennis as of all other sports.

The Pan-Hellenic Council was organized in 1909 by the fraternities in conjunction with the faculty. It consists of two faculty members, one of whom is the president of the council, and of two members from each fraternity in Colorado College. The council has charge of all matters pertaining to the fraternities and marks a distinct advance in the Greek-letter life of the College.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew is an organization of Episcopalian young men having as its aim "The Spread of Christ's Kingdom among men, especially young men." The distinctive work is personal among men and there are two rules, "the rule of prayer" and "the rule of service."

The Brotherhood was founded in this country in 1883, and there are now about 3,000 chapters with a total membership of over 25,000.

Colorado College secured a chapter in 1904, but from 1907 to this year the work has lapsed, necessitating the renewal of the charter. There are now a number of college chapters. The Colorado College Chapter was one of the first in the west.

The membership roll for this year is 181,—136 active and 45 associate members. There has been one Bible class, led by Dr. Parsons, studying "The Social Message of Jesus;" about 60 have been enrolled in this. The four mission study classes,—one on Korea, one on Africa, and two on the immigrant problem,—have an enrollment of 72. The total number of religious meetings for the year is 32; most of these have been led by the girls. Dr. Bayley, of Denver and Dr. Franklin, of Colorado Springs have been the principal outside speakers.

The Student Volunteer Band of Colorado College is composed of all students who have signed the declaration card of the Student Volunteer Movement and thereby signified their intention of entering into foreign mission work when their college and professional studies are completed. The local Volunteers are in touch with the International Movement through letters and visits from traveling secretaries. The purpose of the organization is that those who are most deeply interested in the cause of missions may be the center from which missionary influence may radiate.

The work of the Band is largely that of intensifying the missionary feeling of those who are members and of preparing them for active missionary work in the Christian Associations and missionary activity of the College. The general work of the Band is that done by its members as individuals.

The Third Annual Conference of the Colorado Student Volunteers was held in Colorado Springs at the invitation of the local Band. Forty delegates were present from the colleges of the state. The list of speakers was especially strong, including Mr. Arthur Rugh, of China; Rev. J. Z. Moore, of Korea; Dr. John Inglis, of China; and Mr. Guy V. Aldrich. This conference was a great inspiration for the missionary work of the college, as it was attended largely by college students.

This organization is one of the oldest on the campus. Many of the former members are now in active service on the foreign field. Colorado College graduates in mission work form a circle which reaches around the world, so that we may feel sure that the sun is always shining on one of our former number who is at work to bring about the consummation of the motto of the Student Volunteer Movement: "The Evangelization of the World in This Generation."

Scientific

Forestry Club

The Forestry Club was organized in Colorado College for the purpose of increasing interest in forestry and gaining practical knowledge of conditions. The meetings are given up to topics of general interest along this special line of work. As the opportunity offers, men of authority are guests of the club and give addresses on forestry subjects.

The Engineers' Club

To fill a fast-growing need in the life of the engineering school and its students, there was organized this fall The Engineers' Club of Colorado College. The aim of the club is social and literary advancement of its members. Engineering students of the three upper classes are eligible for full membership, but Freshmen engineers and any others interested are always welcome to the literary programs.

Meetings are held every Friday evening at 7:15 o'clock, in Coburn Library. Aside from the regular meetings, special sessions are held about once a month at which practicing engineers address the club and visitors. Prominent among those who have spoken and are to speak before the club are: Mr. A. W. Gray, Mr. Will Trudgian, Mr. J. H. Kerr, Mr. Leonard E. Curtis, and others. These meetings have proved very popular not only with the engineering students but with the engineers of this city. The regular meetings have been given over to debates and papers on technical and popular subjects, while with the securing of a piano the club has brought out the musical talents of its members.

Judging from the needs of such an organization and the interest shown by members and outsiders, the Engineers' Club of Colorado College has come to stay and to be a factor in the life of the College.

Language Clubs

This Club was organized in 1908 and is therefore a growing society. Its object is the acquiring of greater fluency in speaking the German language and a greater knowledge of the "Vaterland." The programs are devoted to papers on German literature or reading from the great German writers. Music, the singing of folk songs, and games play a prominent part. This year the club expects to present two farces in German.

This club is composed of those students whose homes are in the New England states, and is purely social. Many tramps and excursions into the hills are enjoyed each year.

The object of the Q. Q. Club is to stimulate interest in literary work among students. It originated in a suggestion made by Herbert N. Roe 1910, and was organized in the fall of 1909, with the following charter members: E. S. Alden, R. G. Argo, C. Donelan, W. N. Jameson, H. W. McOuat, H. N. Roe, G. W. Shaw, H. E. Woodbridge. The following new members were elected in the fall of 1910: L. L. Shaw, H. G. Sinton, J. J. Sinton, B. W. Weirick. R. G. Argo was elected president for 1910-'11.

The club meets every two weeks for an evening's talk. Each member is ordinarily expected to read some of his work, which is then discussed and criticised. If during the reading or talk the club shows signs of distress, it is the duty of the President as Wielder of the Hook to silence the long-winded member. Discussion is not confined to the subjects of the papers read: anything which interests the club may be talked about.

Candidates for membership may be proposed at any meeting; but the names may not be voted upon until the succeeding meeting. A unanimous vote is required for election.

This year after some delay a recreation room or gymnasium was installed in the old dining room in the basement of the building. A new reading room, office and reception room have also been fitted up and the old reception room closed. Not long after the first apparatus was put in place in the recreation room, the first "smokeless smoker" was given. This was so great a success that it was decided to hold some such affair every month. Officers were elected under whose capable leadership an excellent spirit has been developed in the hall. The most important manifestation of this spirit was the "Hagerman Hall Open House" held Thursday evening, March the ninth.

On this evening a large electric sign bearing the words "Hagerman Hall" was erected over the entrance. The halls were decorated, the first floor in red, the second in white, and the third in blue. As the guests entered they were received by ushers and conducted through the building. Later there was a short concert by the hall orchestra, and at quarter past eight a play, "The Quarantined Rivals," was given in the improvised theater. After this there were refreshments and music by the Hagerman Hall Mandolin Club.

The committees in charge were as follows:

Open House Committee: T. A. Fisher, chairman; Hayward, Dawson, Fay, Carson.

Decorating Committee: E. W. Barnes.

Orchestra: Hayward (leader), clarinet; Jacobs, violin; Fisher, mandolin; Hall, piano; Patterson, cornet; Wong, baritone; Cook, tuba; Dawson, traps.

Mandolin Club: Fisher, first mandolin; Dawson and Howland, second mandolins; Cook, guitar.

Play Committee: Weirick, playwright; Alden, trainer; Fisher, manager; Sanderson, properties; Hayward, electrician.

The aim of the Hesperian Society is to develop in its members a high standard of literary work, democratic school spirit, and true fellowship.

During the year, many live questions have been debated, several scientific lectures given, and much stress has been laid on Parliamentary Drill. The Hesperian Quartette has proved to be a pleasing feature of the programs. The intense interest shown by the new members will without doubt result in a winning debating team next year.

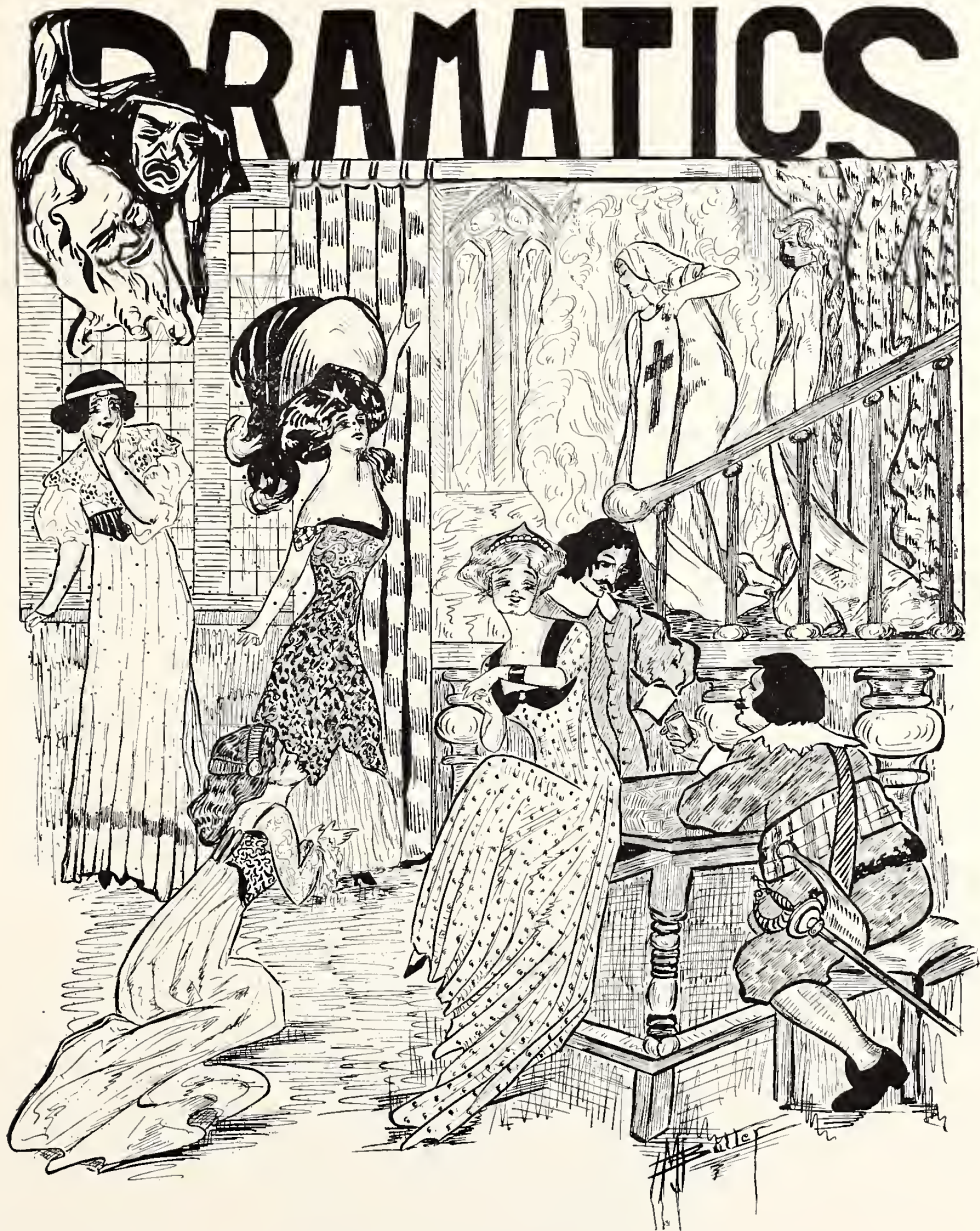

Occasionally the Society enjoys a trip to the mountains and a program around a cheerful camp-fire.

THE JUNIOR OPERETTA

College Dramatics

Dramatics in college life are generally for pleasure and financial gain, but in Colorado College they have assumed a distinct educational phase. The various organizations presenting plays have tried to emphasize the scholarship side as well as the entertainment feature. The Junior class give us each year one of the light operas and have chosen such popular ones as "Princess Bonnie" and "The Little Tycoon," bringing us in touch with the better comic operas. The Dramatic Club have given some of the classic comedies, such as Sheridan's "The Rivals," Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," and Churchill's "The Title Mart." In addition to this they are giving each year one of the modern mystery plays, "Eager Heart." The Cercle Francais presents each year a French play, and have brought to us in the original Moliere's "Le Medecin Malgre Lui" and "La Poudre Aux Yeux," by Labiche and Martin. The Deutsche Verein has given "Einer muss heiraten" and "Eigensinn." These plays are of distinct help to both players and hearers and deserve hearty support. Probably the most distinctive dramatic presentation is the Old English play given each year by Pearson's Literary Society. Last year they revived Jonson's "The Silent Woman," and this year gave for the first time in America Greene's "Friar Bacon and Friar Bungay." These plays are given with the Elizabethan setting and give one an accurate idea of the drama of that period. The various organizations, that are taking so much care to give us the best, are aiding in the literary work of the College and are entitled to encouragement and support.

Although this is only the fourth year of the Dramatic Club's existence, it has gained a strong foothold among the young women. The need for such an organization is proved by its large membership. Every young woman of collegiate rank in the College may become a member. The preparation for plays not only gives an opportunity for development along histrionic lines, but also aids in a much larger purpose, that of unifying the life of the young women.

The great stimulus for the club came in the completion, this past year, of Cogswell Theater. It has a seating capacity of three hundred and is perfect in every detail.

Besides entertaining their friends at a performance during the second semester, the members of the club had the faculty as their guests at the presentation of "Eager Heart," a Christmas mystery play. The other plays have been "The Rivals," "She Stoops to Conquer," and one farce given by the Seniors.

The club, desiring one purely social event, has decided to have a dance in May for all its members in honor of the newly elected president. It is hoped that this may be an annual feature.

The source of all our campus joys
Of strolls and walks and chattering noise ;
The cause of all our class-room pain,
Our cuts and flunks, our bluffing vain ;
The cause of all the midnight burning
Of the oil that gets us learning—

What little we have—

Is GIRLS.

Events in the Social Life and Other Events

The Barbecue

The Seventeenth Annual Barbecue of Colorado College was held Hallowe'en evening on Washburn field with the Sophomore class under the able management of Lynch as hosts. The method of entertainment was a departure from that of years before—insurance agents had proved deaf to the entreaties of tradition-loving students, and "the greatest bonfire ever" was tabooed. But Lynch and his classmates rose to the occasion and produced the "new barbecue."

There were speeches, of course, Prexy and Dean Cajori, Parkison and Shaw paid their tributes to the occasion, the quartet sang, and the blanket held full sway as one freshman after another was called up to compete in aeronautics. Far off towards the mesa flares were lighted, making the sophomore numerals in great letters of fire, burning till the last freshman was tossed.

Then came the feature of the evening, an Old English hunting feast. Students and faculty sat down together at rustic tables and were served by the sophs who were dressed in keeping with the occasion; buxom lasses and sturdy lads, court jesters and Shakespearian fools united to make the occasion a merry one. Food and cider were in abundance; little glass mugs tied with the colors of the class were given as souvenirs, and each and every guest was shown the time of his life. The "fireless barbecue" was a pronounced success.

The experiment, tried for the first time, of admitting only college students and their immediate friends proved so satisfactory that in all probability it will be followed in the future.

Insignia Day

From Seniors' Point of View.

This is the day set aside by the College for us. It is the time when we are supposed to feel the honor and dignity of our position. From this day on we turn our backs on the foolish side of life and take a step upward toward the "higher plane." We wear our caps and gowns as a pledge of this fact.

From the Juniors' Point of View.

This is the day that we have our "big stunt." We make as elaborate plans as we dare. This year we awed the spectators with our appearance as Grecians in a "Moral Victory" parade, even going as far as to carry out the ideal Greek day of games, contests and other sports.

After several tournaments were engaged in, and maidens were given to the victors as prizes, we hastened down to the "oracle" in the Jungle. Here the oracle was consulted and it said, "Seek the higher plane" (?). This we did immediately, believing we had the sanction of the college. A car was chartered to get us there and the gods themselves furnished a perfect day. But really from the results, we think that we must have misunderstood that oracle.

The May Festival

The May Festival of last year was a big success. The Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. are responsible for this good time. Last year the time was changed and instead of giving the Festival in the afternoon the committee in charge opened the gates at five o'clock. From that time on there was not a dull moment.

Supper was served cafeteria style and the grassy spots in the jungle served as tables. After supper the crowd was encouraged to spend its money freely. Mysterious air machines which gave you most fascinating sensations drew a great many. The candy counter and the Dutch Band were very popular. Fun continued at its height until nine o'clock, when everybody went up to Cogswell theater to see the minstrel show and enjoy a solid hour of sparkling comedy. Stories, songs and even dances were given to the delight of all.

The May Festival is one of the times of the year when the whole College gets together and enjoys the good fellowship which abounds in its many students.

The Colonial Ball

The Colonial Ball is the crowning glory of the girls' social functions. A person could readily imagine himself back in the old days of the Washingtons if he were to catch a glimpse into Bemis Hall on the evening of February 22. The affair is under the management of the girls of the Sophomore class.

The evening opened by the girls marching into the dining room singing "America." The dining room looked more artistic and beautiful than ever, lighted as it was with candles and decorated with flags.

After supper, the dance itself began. The grand march was led by Mrs. Slocum and Mary Bogue, vice-president of the Sophomore class. The special feature of the evening was the Sophomore minuet, which was one of the best ever given. The music was furnished by Fink's orchestra. Viewed from any standpoint, the ball was one of the prettiest and most enjoyable affairs this year.

The Junior Freshman Reception

The Junior-Freshman reception is given for the purpose of making the two classes better acquainted. This year a reception was held in Bemis Hall for an hour, then the two classes adjourned to Cogswell theatre and were entertained with a minstrel show. Some of the latest coon songs and the very latest jokes were given.

A feature of the performance was the appearance of an aviator on the stage in his airship. He appeared and that was all. The airship broke a propeller and Mr. Washington Jackson Wright barely escaped with his life. The ensemble work of the minstrels was especially appreciated.

This event in the College social calendar is looked forward to by both classes and is the one social event which the two classes enjoy together.

The Stag Ball

Have you ever seen awkward women with big hands and feet and poor complexions? Probably you have seen one or two women of that kind, but you have never seen more than two together unless you have attended a Y. M. C. A. Stag Ball, and even then you didn't see the real thing, but only imitations.

The young men of the College most heartily welcome the night when they can borrow dresses from—you know—and dress up like women. The night is the Saturday after mid-year examinations, when all the worries of the week are over and everybody is willing to have a good time.

One of the beauties of the event is that the women are allowed to be present and enjoy the novel costumes which are worn and to see the humorous "stunts" which the different groups or couples act out.

The men dress in all kinds of costumes. All nationalities are allowed. A bad man from the wilds of Montana is just as welcome as a country minister and his wife.

Prizes are given for the best dressed couple, the best waltzers, and the best stunt. A college education is not complete unless you have entered into competition for one of these prizes.

The Y. M. C. A. Circus

The Y. W. C. A. circus will test the abilities of the most ingenious girl. She may be anything from a dwarf to a polar bear, from a side-show to a graceful bare-back rider, from a "barker" to the Italian vendor of balloons, peanuts and chewing gum.

The circus this year was well supported by most of the girls in college. It was held in McGregor gymnasium, March 11. The most popular "stunts" were the minstrel show and the "gastronomical tragedy." The proceeds were given to the Cascade fund.

Contemporary

Contemporary held its annual musical function at the Antler's Hotel May 11, 1910. Marie Schley Bren, a vocal soloist of Denver, rendered a very entertaining program, after which supper was served in the dining room. The musical program was as follows:

1. a) Connais tu le pays (Mignon).....Thomas
- b) Sai cos ebbe enore (Madam Butterfly).....Puccini

Hypatia

The Hypatia function was a theatre party, February 3, on the occasion of the recital by Josef Hofmann. At the conclusion of the program an informal reception was held at the Antler's drawing room previous to a course supper served in the private dining room. For the supper, the guests were seated at small tables, which were decorated with the society flower, the daisy, and ferns.

The program given by Josef Hofmann was as follows:

NUGGET HASH.

Take fifteen frenzied flunking, frightened Juniors. Cook over a slow fire every evening during February and March. Add gradually fifteen pounds of scribbling, three pounds of chestnuts, and several Rosa Bonheur masterpieces. Serve sizzling hot on over-cut notices. Though the appearance of this delicacy is not always pleasing, yet it will be found very enjoyable if eaten with the proper spirit.

FRUIT PUNCH.

A delicious and inexpensive dish. Take the juice of two dozen lemons (either sophomore or freshmen brand) six pears, (easily found in the Jungle) and eight peaches, (description unnecessary). If desired a few dates will add a spicy flavor.

SHARK SAUSAGE.

This dish is rapidly going out of favor among the students, but is still a great tonic for the faculty. Choose either the Hamilton, Hall, or Barnes variety of shark. Grind slowly through a math book or biology lecture. Then add one knowing look, one volunteer recitation, and sprinkle with A's. Serve garnished with faculty approbation. Phi Beta Kappa keys are very popular with this dish but on account of their scarcity, early application for one should be made at a reliable dealer's.

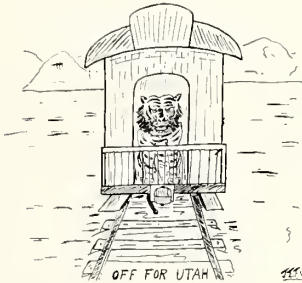

At the Apple-onion Society

This is the tale of a Tiger bold,
Each of his triumphs here is told
And how he managed his foes to whip,
And gain for himself the championship

First the careering Cowboy came—
He thought he could play the football game.
Said he, "I'm a fellow that's hard to beat,
And I'm out a-hunting for Tiger
meat."
The Tiger quickly tamed him down
And as he went back to Laramie town,
Looking dejected and ail forlorn,
His feelings hurt and his clothing torn,
This was the burden of his wail,
"I was trying to twist the Tiger's
tail."

This whetted the Tiger's thirst for gore,
And licking his chops, he hunted for more.
Westward his way he chanced to take,
He found his meal by the Great Salt Lake.
A disciple of Joseph Smith he saw,
And gave him a roughing with tooth
and claw.
As the Mormon was eating his humble
pie,
His seventeen wives around did cry:
"You foolish fellow! I knew you'd fail,
When you tried to twist the Tiger's
tail."

Next came from Golden an engineer,
Devoid of judgment as well as fear.
With his signs and bells he thought he'd scare
The terrible Tiger in his lair.
"Look out for me," was the Miner's cry,
"Who bars my path is sure to die."
But hunting Tigers and hunting for gold,
Are different trades as the sequel told.
And he moaned as he hit the homeward trail.
"I was trying to twist the Tiger's
tail."

A Rube with a record next took the floor,
Thus boasting of victories won before;
"My score three hundred—My rivals'
ten.
And none of them able to fight again."
From Bleeding Kansas this stranger came,
(Bleeding Kansas deserves its name)
For battered and scarred and his pride
all flown,
He reaped the whirlwind that he had sown.
Back in Manhattan he told this tale,
"I was trying to twist the Tiger's
tail."

Then "Lucky Boulder" the people saw
By small pox saved from the Tiger's maw.
"It's doctor's orders," was all he d
say.
And the Tiger was robbed of his rightful prey.
So he to Collins in anger went,
And on the Farmer his rage he spent.
The Aggie, recovering fro a the fight,
Heard people mocking his sorry plight:
"The farm for you and the milking
pail,
Instead of twisting the Tiger's tail."

Thanksgiving Day came round at last,
To break for the Tiger his two weeks
fast.
Down from Denver a challenge was sent.
By a Minister fierce, with dire intent,
Great were the boasts he made in his pride.
Greater his fall, the contest tried,
When the battle was over the Minister lay
Gasping, disheveled, just able to say,
"What was it hit me? Why did I fail,
In trying to twist the Tiger's tail?"

And now a moral for all—
BEWARE!
Don't hunt for fame near the Tiger's lair.
For wherever else you win, you'll
fail
In trying to twist the Tiger's tail.

OFF FOR UTAH

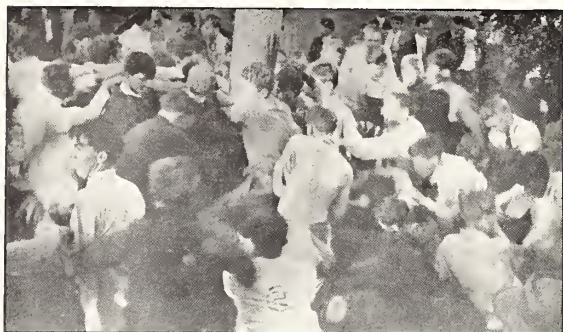

Bruin Inn

By Flora Crowley.

Air: The Old Oaken Bucket.

How dear to the heart are the days of our college,
 When fond recollection presents them to view;
 The campus, the Jungle, the seat of all knowledge,
 And every loved spot to which we will be true;
 Dignified Bemis, McGregor next to it,
 Ticknor and Cutler where rings the old bell;
 Jolly Montgomery and Prexy's house nigh it,
 And e'en Bruin Inn that lies hid in a dell.
 The little log Bruin, the tree-shaded Bruin,
 The well lov-ed Bruin that lies in the dell.

That well lov-ed Bruin we hail as a treasure,
 For oft at eve when sweet freedom we yearn,
 We find it the source of an exquisite pleasure
 To climb through the canon, with Nature to learn.
 How ardent we hasten with appetites sharpened
 For coffee and pies that we all love so well;
 Then soon, as the shadows of night 'round have darkened,
 We see right before us a light in the dell.
 'Tis the little log Bruin, the tree-shaded Bruin,
 The well lov-ed Bruin that lies in the dell.

THE UNAPPY CLUB.

Founded 1890.

Colors: Red and Yellow.

Vegetable: Onion.

This club is purely social in character and its aim is to give the highest possible social training to its members. The annual function is a banquet. The first of these elaborate affairs occurred April 22, 1910, in Pearsons club room. The banquet hall was artistically and appropriately decorated with lemons and wall flowers. Mr. Hap and Miss Fit received the guests. After some time spent in the customary salutations, the guests sat down to an elegantly appointed banquet in seven courses which consisted of:

Fowl a la Bun
Greens for the Green
Spud Shavings
Old Friend a la Staff of Life
Heavenly Bliss
Sweets for the Sweet
"Pop"

The following toasts were much enjoyed:

The Past.....Mr. Hap
The Present.....Mr. Take
The Future.....Miss Fortune
Our Absent Members.....Mr. Fortune
The Ladies.....Mr. Fit
The Gentlemen.....Miss Hap
Unappy Miss Take

Toastmistress: Miss Fit.

THE OVER CUTS.

(With apologies to Kipling.)

A couple once to the Jungle went,
(Even as you and I)
There four or five hours they spent,
Not on study but fussing bent,
To get their lessons they really meant.
(Even as you and I)

O, the times we walked, and the times we talked,
And the excellent things we planned,
(Taking the time for our fussing then Instead of getting our lessons then)
Are things that you'll understand.

Next day no lessons that couple had,
(Even as you and I)
Caj was sarcastic and Woody mad,
Bushee's exams make anyone sad,
And the way they got it was worse than bad.
(Even as you and I)

O, the cuts we took, and the cons we took,
And the two hour cut exams.
Because we fussed in the Jungle once,
Instead of going to classes once,
We met with those cut exams.

E protect our goods from cellar to roof,

In caddies and bins that are dust-proof,

Coffees are roasted and sold with a right good will,

And people drink 'til they have their fill.

'Though everything is clean and nice,

Our goods are sold at a moderate price.

LITERARY CRITICISM.

Professor Woodbridge was reading Pope to one of his English classes and had just finished the line—

“Fools rush in where angels fear to tread,” when the door was opened softly and a fair co-ed looked in, then cautiously withdrew. A ripple ran around the class, and one young man whispered to another: “That must be a fool.”

The one spoken to shook his head. “No,” he said, “that was the angel.”

THE SAD STORY OF A SENIOR.

A girl from the Western Slope was visiting Colorado College which she expected to enter the next year and was seeing the place, escorted by a C. C. Senior from the same town.

The pair got off the car at the Plaza and the Senior pointed out the Library, Perkins and Palmer Halls to the gay young thing on his arm. After a moment of contemplation that person gargled forth: "Oh, ain't those buildings just too lovely for anything, they have such a strong masculine look."

"Yes," replied the Senior, with becoming gravity, "that's simply because they have tiles on top."

As they walked toward Palmer Hall the girl became more impressed with the grandeur of that building, until she burst out: "Oh, isn't it simply a peach!"

Unmoved, the Senior replied: "Yes; pretty soon I'll show you the pit in the middle."

The gay young thing appeared cast down at this but as she looked up above the doors she burst out again: "Oh, what a sweet motto, 'Ye shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you flee.'"

GIDDINGS BROS., The College Favorite

THE SAD STORY OF A SENIOR.

(Concluded)

The Senior answered nothing at all but silently entered the sacred precincts of Palmer. "My! what a sweet building!" squealed the girl.

"Yes," replied the Senior a bit wearily, "it was not looking so well last year, but they gave it a tablet for internal trouble and now it's better. You can just see the tablet down the hall there. There is some iron in the tablet and it has done much to improve the color of the hall."

The girl looked solemnly at him, then at the tablet, and the two went upstairs. At the top landing the girl turned and looked out of the window. "Oh," she squealed, "what a divine view down Teajohn street. I simply adore these Spanish names."

The Senior grew weak but held his peace nobly. They turned and entered the museum. The first thing the girl's eye lit on was the tiger. "Oh," she cried, hopping up and down with pleasure, "I know now why they call you the 'Tigers'—because you have got this lovely one in your museum." The Senior replied nothing—he had fainted away.

ONE ON THE PROFESSOR.

They were giving quotations from Shakespeare in the Freshman English class, and many of the old familiar lines had been given and remarked upon in the usual manner. "Now who can give another one—one not so well-known?" asked the Professor. After a moment's waiting a hand went up slowly in a distant corner of the room. "All right, Mr. Dowling." Dowling quoted, "'Thy words cut me as deeply as a diamond.'" "Fine!" said the professor, "that is one of the really great lines of Shakespeare which, strangely, is seldom quoted. Now I dare say that not another one of you remember that line simply because you never heard it before you read it. A student of literature should exercise a little originality and be able to pick out the really and truly great things. And yet Mr. Dowling is the only one of this class who was able to appreciate that expression which is one of the grandest that Shakespeare ever penned. How would you interpret it, Mr. Dowling?"

"Shakespeare didn't say it. I made it up!" was the quick response.

A FRESHMAN'S ACCOUNT OF OPENING WEEK.

My Dear Mother:

I have so much to tell you that I don't know whether I can finish tonight or not.

I arrived safely in Colorado Springs Monday afternoon and was met at the station by two College men. They took my trunk checks and then told me how to reach the College grounds. I followed their directions but landed at the cemetery instead. When I finally did reach the campus and my room I found my trunks all pasted over with signs saying, "Watch the Frats Rush Me," and "Mama's Boy," and many others. I felt rather bad and homesick that evening but next morning I felt better when I learned that many other freshmen had been treated in the same way. The Sophomores did it all.

There is something doing all the time here. From Wednesday morning until Thursday night all the freshmen stuck together and made plans to whip the sophomores in the flag rush which came off Friday morning. The sophs won because we couldn't get the flag from the pole.

All the week people had been selling tickets to a sunrise breakfast to be given in the Jungle on Saturday morning. I bought a ticket and went down. Of course, I knew it was a joke, but I just wanted to see how many would be present.

I forgot to tell you about Friday night. The Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. gave a reception at Bemis Hall (a girls' dormitory). I met and shook hands with President Slocum and he said, "I am very glad to see you with us." I like "Prexy." I also met a lot of girls. One of them looks like Nellie. I'm going to call on her. We had pineapple ice cream and cake for refreshments.

Saturday night I had a great time. The Y. M. C. A. gave a Stag reception to all of the men of the College. The President of the Y. M. C. A. made a speech, then President Slocum talked to us about "Our New Gymnasium!" After the speeches the sophs and freshmen had several contests. I won the potato race for the freshmen, but we lost the pie-eating contest, and the dressing contest. We won in the pillow fight and the championship of the evening depended on a Hog-tying contest. We had three big husky fellows who could have won easily if they had gone at it in the right way. After the contest we lined up and passed by a door where we were given apples and peanuts. After getting through a narrow passage where the sophs pushed you from one side to another we all went over and serenaded the girls' halls.

I hear someone calling, "Freshman, this way," so I must go. Good-bye.

HARRY.

A SENIOR'S ACCOUNT OF OPENING WEEK.

Dear Mother:

The freshmen have arrived as green and numerous as ever. The same old fights, receptions and stags have been carried out just as they have been ever since I have been in the College. I am well started in my work and glad that none of this excitement affects me directly. With love.

JOHN.

L'Envoi

(With Apologies to Kipling.)

When the Nugget's last picture is painted and the paste pots are empty and dry;
 When the last of the copy is finished and the proofs are read and laid by;
 We shall rest, and faith we shall need it,—lie down for a week or two,
 Till the annual in all its splendor comes to give us trouble anew.

Then those that were good shall be happy, and their glory shall spread afar;
 But the fussers and bluffers shall tremble when they see themselves as they are;
 They shall find real grief to complain of, and bad epithets they may recall;
 They shall knock for an age without quitting and never be tired at all.

And only our conscience shall praise us, and many's the one that will blame;
 Yet no one has worked for money and no one has worked for fame;
 But each for the joy of working and each in his separate vein,
 Has drawn the thing as he sees it for the sake of C. C.'s fame.
